Buying, Selling and Moving Livestock

Each time livestock are moved off a PIC, a livestock movement must be recorded on the NLIS Database.

The information required to record a livestock movement varies depending on where the animals have moved from and to, and on the type of identification attached to the livestock.

Recording livestock movements on the NLIS database

- If livestock are bought, sold or moved through a saleyard, the livestock movement must be recorded by the saleyard.
- For private sales (i.e. sales and movements that do not take place via a saleyard), the buyer/receiver of the livestock must record the livestock movement.
- The vendor/sender of the livestock is not obligated to record the movement off their property, although they may do so.
- Abattoirs must record movements for all directly consigned livestock.
